IMPORTANT INFORMATION

Providing Your Tax File Number

Under the Superannuation Industry (Supervision) Act 1993, your superannuation fund is authorised to collect, use and disclose your tax file number.

The trustee of your superannuation fund may disclose your tax file number to another superannuation provider, when your benefits are being transferred, unless you request the trustee of your superannuation fund in writing that your tax file number not be disclosed to any other superannuation provider.

Declining to quote your tax file number to the trustee of your superannuation fund is not an offence. However giving your tax file number to your superannuation fund will have the following advantages:

- your superannuation fund will be able to accept all permitted types of contributions to your account/s;
- other than the tax that may ordinarily apply, you will not pay more tax than you need to - this affects both contributions to your superannuation and benefit payments when you start drawing down your superannuation benefits; and
- it will make it much easier to find different superannuation accounts in your name so that you receive all your superannuation benefits when you retire.

Contribution caps

The Federal Government imposes caps on the amounts that a person can contribute to superannuation in any twelve month period.

These caps are indexed and may change from year to year. The cap for contributions made from your after-tax income (called the "non-concessional contributions cap") is $120,000 for the 2024-25 financial year, though you may be eligible to bring forward 3 years worth of contributions and contribute up to 3 times the cap. If you've got a high total super balance, then your contribution cap may be limited.

There is also a cap that applies to contributions made from your before-tax income (like employer contributions, salary sacrifice, and member voluntary contributions for which you later claim a tax deduction). This is called the "concessional contributions cap". For 2024-25 this cap is $30,000 p.a.

Refer to the Australian Food Super Contributions Fact Sheet at ausfoodsuper.com.au/fact-sheets/ for more information about caps and eligibility criteria for the bring forward rule.

Spouse Contributions

You may elect to make contributions to Australian Food Super on behalf of your spouse. Your spouse must have their own Australian Food Super account. Spouse contributions will count towards the receiving spouse's non-concessional contributions cap.

PLEASE NOTE: Like all contributions to super, spouse contributions are "preserved" until your spouse meets a condition of release (e.g. retirement).

Claiming a tax deduction

Did you know that you can claim a tax deduction for member voluntary contributions? If you claim a deduction, contributions tax will be deducted and the contribution will be treated as a before-tax contribution. To be eligible to claim a deduction, if you are over age 67, you need to meet the "work test".

Refer to the Australian Food Super Contributions Fact Sheet at ausfoodsuper.com.au/fact-sheets/ for more information.
